Ph.D. in Financial Economics

Program

Midwest University is pleased to announce the launch of a new PhD in Financial Economics.

This 60-credit PhD program is designed to provide students with a deep understanding of the complex interactions between finance and economics. It offers two main areas of emphasis: Financial Economics and ESG Management.

Program Overview

The Ph.D. in Financial Economics at Midwest University is tailored to meet the growing demand for advanced expertise in financial theory, empirical analysis, and their application to real-world economic challenges.

The program's dual emphasis allows students to specialize in areas that are not only academically robust but also critically relevant to the evolving global financial landscape.

Emphasis Areas

1. Financial Economics

Financial Economics is a specialized field that examines the intricate relationship between financial markets and economic systems. This emphasis area delves into key topics such as asset pricing, financial derivatives, risk management, and macroeconomic policies. Students will explore how financial instruments and markets influence economic outcomes, preparing them to contribute to both academic research and practical financial decision-making at the highest levels.

2. ESG Finance

The ESG Finance emphasis delves into the intersection of finance and sustainable development, highlighting the critical role of financial strategies in promoting environmental, social, and governance (ESG) objectives. ESG Finance focuses on the incorporation of ESG criteria into investment decisions, risk management, and corporate financial practices. As the global demand for responsible investment grows, this emphasis prepares students to navigate the complexities of aligning financial performance with ethical standards and sustainability goals. Students specializing in ESG Finance will gain the expertise needed to drive financial strategies that not only generate economic value but also contribute positively to society and the environment.

Future Expansion

Midwest University is committed to staying at the forefront of academic innovation. As the needs of the financial and economic sectors evolve, the university plans to expand the range of specializations within the Ph.D. in Financial Economics program. This commitment to growth ensures that our graduates will be well-prepared to address emerging challenges and opportunities in a dynamic global environment.

Conclusion

The launch of the Ph.D. in Financial Economics program, with its dual emphasis on Financial Economics and ESG Management, underscores Midwest University's dedication to providing cutting-edge education that aligns with the current and future demands of the global marketplace. This program not only reflects the university's academic excellence but also its commitment to fostering leaders who will drive positive change in the world of finance and beyond.

Integrated Degree Program Guide

This program can be taken as an MBA (36 credits) degree program and an integrated doctoral program.

If you take the two programs together, you will receive two degrees by completing a total of 84 credits.

This program will begin accepting applications in September 2024. If you are interested, please contact the Admissions Office.
